Forecast For Northern Ireland
Issued by Met Office Aberdeen
at 1600 on Tuesday 18 May 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Sunny spells and scattered showers on Wednesday.

This Evening and Tonight:
Any remaining showers through Counties Antrim and Down will soon die out this evening, then a mainly dry night with clear spells developing. Becoming chilly and, with light winds, patchy mist and fog developing. Minimum temperature 2 deg C (36 deg F).

Wednesday:
Any overnight fog patches soon clearing then another day of sunny spells and scattered showers. The showers occasionally heavy, but they aren't expected to be as widespread as Tuesday. Maximum temperature 15 deg C (59 deg F).

Outlook for Thursday to Saturday:
Soon becoming wet and windy on Thursday. Thicker cloud and outbreaks of rain slowly clearing eastwards on Friday with winds easing. Sunny spells and showers through Saturday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.